STATE OF MAINE.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
August 20, 1887.
An adjourned session of the Executive Council will be held at the Council Chamber in August on THURSDAY, the twenty-second day of December next. Attest,
A. J. D. JOHNSON,
Secretary of State.

Benett and the President.

No President of these United States—not even John Tyler or "Poor Pierce"—ever sank so rapidly to public obloquy as Mr. Benett.
He is now sinking. President Pierce had at least self-respect and dignity of character enough to refuse to admit to relations of confidence and personal intimacy with an ingrate scoundrel. Benett of the New York Herald—a man with whom no respectable publication of New York would venture to be associated. Mr. Benett, however, if we may believe positive statements, which are made, corroborated by the checkbook copy-of the Herald itself, has actually accepted of the good will and support of this unhappy detested and often-herself-vilified editorial fraternity.

A letter from a New York correspondent of the New Orleans Picayune makes some revelations regarding the position now held by Benett at the White House, which must make the cheek of every true American burn with shame and indignation. The statement would not be credited, were it not for the fact that the Herald assumes the patronizing air of a confidential organ, without reticence, and is usually favored with important documents, and information from Washington, in advance of other metropolitan papers.

The letter states that there is a man connected with the press anywhere whose relations are so confidential with Mr. Buchanan as those of the editor of the Herald at this time. The revelation was effected by a letter from some time ago, through the agency of the notorious Chevalier Wyckoff.

Mr. Buchanan made the first overture toward a reconciliation, some time before his return from London, by calling on Mr. Benett, at his hotel in Paris, while on his way to visit Delmonico at the Hotel. The ostensible object of the call was to make introductions, though in behalf of Col. Forney, to procure a recreation of the constant abuse to which the latter was subjected in Benett's journal.

The application was successful, and the accounts for the sudden silence of the Herald in regard to Forney, which puzzled many of his friends months ago.

A very dignified proceeding, truly, on the part of Mr. Buchanan. The writer further states that after Mr. Buchanan's election, he indicated a desire to have a friendly understanding with Benett, and the latter gladly accepting the olive branch, an Alliance, effective and defensive was formed.

The terms of capitulation by Mr. Buchanan to the Herald editor were sealed at once by the appointment of Mr. Benett as the correspondent at Bordeaux, a position tantamount to a desire to have a friendly understanding with Benett, and the latter gladly ac-
tive and defensive was formed.

LOCAL AND MAIN NEWS.

See report on page 1st page.
The vessel M. Sanford will leave Portland at the usual hour, on Monday.
The big Vernon, reported ashore at Centerville, has been got off and is now on the way to Holmes. A dispatch received by the owners states that the cargo is considerably damaged and the vessel will need some repairs.

Some Antislavery Cases. We learn from the State of Maine that the examination of Capt.
Willard, the pilot of the Antelope, was concluded on Saturday. No new evidence was introduced in the cross-examination of witness (the case), submitted the case to the Commissioner without argument who thought the evidence heard, and reasonable grounds for suppression of the guilt of Capt. Willard, and therefore held him to be innocent of the charge, to appear for trial at the February term of the District Court.

Portland City Scrip. Drawing six per cent interest, payable in Boston, sold at the broker's board in that city, on Thursday, for $98.
A Mr. Elias Hunt, formerly of Waldoboro, appeared from his wife, in that place, some time ago, and went to Portland. He was several times visited by her, however, at B., and on the last occasion she met a widow named Hunt, at her husband's house. A war of words commenced. Mrs. Hunt accused the widow of improper connection with her husband, whereat the widow attacked Mrs. H. who in turn stabbed the widow with a large shawlpin. After this the widow and her boy, who were present, thrust Mrs. H. out of doors and beat her severely, and then had her arrested. The trial is to be had before Judge Palmer, of Gardiner. Meanwhile, Mrs. H. is held on $500 bail. We gather the above from the Gardiner Intelligencer.
